

AMA is online

The recently created American-Mexican Association held its first regional meeting in Austin, and announced the launch of its website and social network accounts.

These digital channels will serve to keep its members and allies informed and to promote the contributions of Mexicans and Mexican-Americans to the U.S.

AMA's new website will be updated on a regular basis with relevant news for the American-Mexican community, events, and information kits related to policy changes and current events. Visitors are encouraged to explore the website, sign up to become members, and share relevant information for the AMA community.
